Billy Graham Brings 100,000 to Yankee Stadium

Biggest crowd ever to pack New York's Yankee Stadium turned out last night 100,000 strong to hear evangelist Billy Graham. Another 20,000 had to be turned away. Crowd overflowed stands into entire outfield surrounding Graham's pulpit, set up at second base. Many people fainted in 93 degree heat—New York's hottest day of the year. Vice-president Richard Nixon was Graham's guest of honor. Graham's biggest-ever meeting was in London, England, in 1954 when 120,000 packed Wembley Stadium.—(AP Photofax.)

Russia Closes Port

MOSCOW — The Russians closed most of Vladivostok Bay today to foreign ships and planes. A decision by the Council of Ministers in effect turns the bay, which bears the name of Peter the Great, into a Russian lake.

Radio Moscow announced the council has designated all waters within a line from the mouth of the Tumen-Ula River to Cape Povorotny as internal waters of the Soviet Union.

Foreigners were warned to stay out of all except a segment fronting on the port of Nakhodka, 50 miles southeast of Vladivostok. Shipping bulletins are to set forth the routes that must be followed to and from Nakhodka.

$17 Bill Stolen

A one-dollar bill valued at $17 was reported stolen last night by letter to the city police department.

The bill, belonging to Roger Newberry, 839 Fort, was a collector's item, a 1911 large-size bill with the Earl and Countess Grey's picture engraved on it.

OTTAWA (CP)—A series of major decisions lies ahead of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who returns Tuesday from a 10-day western holiday. Among the first will be an extension of the 17 member cabinet.

Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated that appointment of new cabinet members has a high priority.

Appointments, perhaps within the first week after his return, may fill three of the five portfolios now held by ministers on an acting basis. The important post of agriculture minister will be one.

The prime minister also has said he plans the early naming of another French-speaking cabinet member from Quebec—the province now is represented by two ministers—and a cabinet member from Ontario of the Roman Catholic faith.

LIKELY MAN

Speculation on the Quebec appointment has centred around Paul Comtois, 61, newly-elected Commons member for Nicolet, Yamaska.

Two new Ontario MPs have been mentioned as possible choices: Arthur Maloney, 37, of Toronto Parkdale, noted criminal lawyer, and Osie Villeneuve, 61-year-old cattle dealer from Glengarry-Prescott.

Besides agriculture, the portfolios not yet filled by full-time ministers are health and welfare, mines, citizenship and immigration and defence production. Also, Mr. Diefenbaker is acting external affairs minister—a post he is expected to hold for some time.

Mr. Diefenbaker will also have some major policy matters to deal with.

Trade Minister Churchill is expected to have ready some definite proposals for carrying out the party's election promise to provide cash advances on farm-stored Prairie wheat.

The prime minister also is pledged to increase old age pensions and reduce taxes in the first session of the new Parliament starting Oct. 14. In the immediate future are important, though informal, talks with United States State Secretary Dulles, who comes to Ottawa next weekend on a private visit.

Uneasy Lies The Crown Of Miss Peru

LONG BEACH, Calif.—"Legitimate" beauties took a back seat at the Miss Universe contest yesterday as organizers of the now farcical merry-go-round reeled from shock after shock.

Already a laughing stock over the choice of a mother of two as Miss America, the red-faced sponsors learned yesterday that the girl who fooled them had been married twice.

Girls Free Police

SEATTLE—Under a new city council policy, there will be 20 neatly-uniformed young women checking parking meters in the Seattle area early next year, Councilman J. D. Braman announced today.

The women, known as "Meter Maids" in various other cities where they have proved successful, will replace 28 policemen who will be able to concentrate on major crime problems, Braman explained.

British Asked For Aid

BAHRAIN, Persian Gulf (Reuters)—An estimated 1,500 rebel tribesmen were reported Saturday fighting a British-led native army for the second day in the sultry desert of oil-rich Muscat and Oman on the east coast of Arabia.

In Nicosia, Cyprus, a spokesman for the British Middle East land forces said the pro-British Sultan of Oman has asked for aid in fighting the rebels who are reported to control the area around Nizwa, ancient capital of Oman.

But in Bahrain and London, British officials denied that the sultan, Said Bin Taimur, had asked for aid.

The revolt is reported led by the exiled Imam (spiritual leader) of Oman, Sheikh Ghaleb Bin Ali.

The attack may be proceeding against Muscat, capital of the sultanate government, and the Buraimi Oasis, British-controlled oil-rich area claimed by Saudi Arabia.

Sources in Cyprus said British troops are expected to be flown soon from Aden to the desert. Rumors reaching Bahrain said RAF planes were ordered to stand by.

Canners Protect Prices

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California cling peach processors are destroying about 37,000 tons of fruit this year instead of canning it and thereby depressing the market, says the state agriculture department.

The estimate was made Friday by Dr. E. W. Braun, chief of the department's bureau of markets. He said the cling peach crop will be about 680,000 tons, a record and way too many to be used. Last year's tonnage was 635,000.

May Find Duncan Family

New Clue to Missing Plane

Mystery disappearance of a Duncan couple in a light plane last May might be solved early next week when a search party reaches an almost inaccessible spot in the Mount Pilchuck area of Washington.

Search party will leave Everett, Washington, either today or tomorrow to investigate a report of plane wreckage in the Mt. Pilchuck area. The report was made by a Snohomish resident, Bob Twitchell said last night the wreckage was reported seen in that area. He began organizing a park party last night in Everett. Duncan relatives of the Wall family have posted a $1,000 reward for the discovery of the wreckage was reported seen in plane.

Death Car Sliced

One Dies, Two Hurt As Car Plunges Off Youbou Road

LAKE COWICHAN—A 20-year-old Honeymoon Bay logger received fatal head injuries when the car he was believed driving plunged off the road in nearby Youbou into a utility pole about 8 a.m. yesterday.

Two others were injured in the accident, one seriously.

Patrick Hodgins, son of Mrs. Benjamin Miller of Honeymoon Bay, died in King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan five hours after the accident.

Top of the death car was reported completely sheared off when the car struck the pole and turned over. Cause of the accident was not known by RCMP.

Injured and in the Duncan hospital were Ronald Nesbitt, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nesbitt of Lake Cowichan; and Mrs. Charlotte Anderson of Lake Cowichan, with severe head injuries. Mr. Nesbitt's injuries were said to be not serious.

Mr. Hodgins had started work only this week with the Beech and Trace Logging Co. operating out of Honeymoon Bay. He had previously been working on the mainland.

An inquest date will be set by Coroner A. E. Green of Duncan. Mr. Hodgins' body is in Hirst's Funeral Chapel, Duncan.

Besides his mother, he is survived by a half-brother.

Saanich Plan Ready

Vast System Of Sewers

Master plan for long-term development of sewage disposal systems to serve most of Saanich municipality will be officially accepted from consulting engineers by council Monday night.

The projected arterial sewer systems would include 35 miles of trunk and interceptor sewers and sewage treatment plants on the Colquitz River and at Cordova Bay.

Estimated total cost, if and when fully completed, is $8,000,000. Work would be undertaken piecemeal over many years according to the demands of population and economic feasibility.

The municipality would add lateral sewers to individual streets at additional cost when required. The arterial systems are designed to serve the ultimate estimated population of Saanich—147,000 people.

(Stories of the master plan and more immediate requirements for sewage disposal facilities on page 13.)

Penticton Hospital

Nurses' Strike Starts Monday

PENTICTON (CP)—Every indication is that the strike of nurses at Penticton Hospital will take place as scheduled at 8 a.m. Monday.

The Penticton hospital board released this statement yesterday.

"There has been an offer of some additional funds from the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service. However, this is insufficient to meet a reasonable estimate of cash for 1957 and there is as yet no reason to believe that the strike of the nursing staff on Monday morning can be averted."

Only emergency cases are being admitted, and the hospital is expected to discharge more than half its patients during the weekend.

Administrator E. F. MacDonald said, "There will not be more than 40 patients left" when the nurses walk out.

The hospital is now caring for 102 patients, including 15 new born babies.

Evelyn Hood, personnel services director of the B.C. Registered Nurses' Association, said Friday the main point at issue is whether conciliation recommen-

No H-Bomb Clean

Ike Shocks Scientist

PARIS (AP)—France's high-commissioner of atomic energy said Friday official use of the term "clean" for a hydrogen bomb is shocking and disturbing.

Scientist Francis Perrin aimed his declaration in a letter to the city police department.

newspaper article at a recent statement by President Eisenhower about the development of a minimum-fall-out H-bomb that could be used for spot action in battle and would not have a widespread, lethal effect on non-combatants.

Eisenhower used the term "clean" in the sense that the bomb's after-effects would be localized and under control.

Perrin took the view that nothing capable of mass destruction in any way should be called "clean."

They reasoned it out this way. "We are going to accept Miss Peru as Miss Universe because we believe her entry was made in good faith and hers is a leading industrial family in Peru."

Well, at least Gladys isn't married—they hope.

WILL Japanese-made cars be appearing on the Canadian market one of these days?

The only Japanese vehicles to reach here so far have been nursery models three or four inches long.

However, the magazine Japan magazine reports that full-sized Nipponese cars and trucks are rolling off the production lines in greater and greater numbers.

Japanese manufacturers conquered difficulties of money and materials to produce their first cars in 1955. At present, about 90 per cent of the parts for Japanese cars are made in Japan.

"It is expected that in 1958, 100 per cent of the parts is to be produced in this country and exported to Southeast Asia and some other places," says the magazine in its quaintly-phrased English.

"And as for the prices of the automobiles here, a Toyopet (middle-sized car) costed 1,240,000 yen in 1953, but now 40 per cent reduction in the price is made because of recent increase in production.

"Datsun (small) cars which once costed 1,000,000 yen are now 600,000 yen each, and they can possibly be being exported at the cost of 500,000 yen if they are kept free from national sales tax."

I understand that 500,000 yen would be roughly $1,500. Taxes and freight would bring up the price of a Japanese small car to at least $1,800, by that reckoning.

Sounds as though they will have to lower the price a little further, if Japanese cars are to compete on the North American market with British and Continental models. Or maybe they could cut costs by putting friction motors in them.

Each news bulletin brings another shocking disclosure of perjury in the ranks of contenders for the Miss Universe title.

Having learned in rapid succession that Miss America was really Mrs. that she had two children and that she had actually been married twice, the first time at the age of 13—we beauty contest fans are now almost immune to shock.

Nothing will surprise us now—except, perhaps, announcement that the winner of the title is really not a girl at all, but an educated vegetable from Mars.

At the last house we lived in, there was a flagpole. I never got around to hoisting a flag. For one thing, there was no rigging to hang it on, and my patriotism wasn't strong enough to impel me aloft at the risk of a broken neck.

So the flagpole stood bare, a continual reproach to my cowardice and laziness.

The old house, like our present one, stands at the water's edge. The other day I was rowing near the old house when I caught sight of a jagged shape against the skyline.

It couldn't be—but it was. The new occupants of the house had mounted a television aerial on top of the flagpole. A depressing sight.

There must be a message lurking in this somewhere, but I feel too sad to pursue it.

$250,000 Addition to Observatory

New Telescope Likely Soon

By DAVID FRANCIS

Victoria may soon get a new 48-inch telescope. Dr. C. S. Beals, Canada's top astronomer, said yesterday.

He said he hoped the federal department of mines and technical surveys would approve a contract for construction of the telescope in the "near future" at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich.

Dr. and Mrs. Beals are visiting here. Where Dr. Beals worked at the observatory for nearly 20 years before going to Canada in 1916.

One of five tenders for construction of the telescope has been recommended to the department, Dr. Beals said. Amount of the tender was not disclosed, but an early estimate of the cost of the entire project was $250,000.

The proposed telescope would supplement the present 72-inch one, and be used largely for studying star spectra, brightness and color.

Dr. Beals, Dominion Astronomer, outlined growth in the scientific work of the observatory here. Equipment was better and scientists were making greater use of electronic computers and working more on theoretical aspects of astronomy.

A reason for his visit to the west, Dr. Beals said, is to consider locations for a proposed large radio telescope, Canada's first, if built.

Dr. Beals leaves here Monday. On his return trip, he will visit a recently discovered crater near Four Lake in North Saskatchewan which may have been caused by a meteorite.

He heard about the crater, some 1,000 feet in diameter, about two months ago. Largest meteorite crater in Canada is eight miles across.

Reeve Reverses, Diespecker Says

Saanich Councillor Eugene Diespecker charged yesterday that Reeve Arthur Ash, in his fight for a referendum on the municipal hall issue, has reversed his stand of a year ago.

The councillor cited reports to show that the reeve urged council at that time to renovate the present hall and erect an addition without referring to ratepayers.

"The campaign the reeve is now carrying on for amalgamation apparently compels him to criticize the councillors who are implementing his recommendations made shortly after his election," the councillor said.

He termed "strangely at variance with the facts" a statement of the reeve that "he fought the addition to Saanich municipal hall."

U.S. Divers Not Pirates

Victoria historians are sheathing their cutlasses and uncocking their flintlock pistols following a report that a group of Seattle and Portland skindivers are not interested in taking parts of an old wreck south of the border.

The American historians originally set out to find the wreck of the Tanager, sunk in 1811 near Tofino, but weather halted that search, but by following the directions of an old Indian they found another wreck, including a seven-foot-long cannon.

Leader of the skindiving party, Dr. George W. Catlett of Portland, announced this week his party only wanted to take pictures of anything they salvaged.

The cannon hasn't been raised to the surface yet but divers have salvaged pieces of lead, wood and brass rivets.

Flare have been attached to the cannon, which will be raised to the surface as soon as a boat is found with a winch capable of lifting the gun from the water.

All material salvaged will be turned over to Ivan H. Clarke, a merchant and postmaster at Nanaimo, who has been appointed a receiver of wrecks and will in turn send the relics to G. A. Yardley, collector of customs in Victoria.

Mr. Yardley said last night he would either decide where the relics should go, or obtain authority from the department of transport as to their disposition.

Doctors in the House

Internes at Work

Stethoscope in Pocket Their Badge of Office

Internes training at St. Joseph's Hospital come from all parts of the world but look the same in their white coats and slightly uncertain bedside manner.

As a matter of fact they could be mistaken for hospital plumbers or orderlies were it not for their badge of office, a stethoscope protruding from the coat pocket.

They call each other "doc," but they are still passing through a year-long phase of practical training that separates medical school from the day the shingle is hung.

NO COFFEE BREAK

Four such neophytes in the intricate world of medicine are currently in training with the St. Joseph's staff. Three are married, the other complains that internes are not permitted to have a coffee break with the student nurses.

Behind them are seven years of intensive academic study. They are now supplementing this knowledge with the practical treatment of patients, assisting and learning from the patient's own doctor in addition to the hospital training program.

THREE MONTHS

Internship at any accredited teaching hospital, such as St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee in Victoria, includes three months of medicine (diagnosis and treatment of patients who do not require surgery), three months of surgery, one month of obstetrics. Remaining five months is taken in various specialties including gynecology, the study of women's diseases.

They are in fact doctors licensed to practice medicine within the hospital. In the case of an emergency patient, internes always give emergency first aid and the patient's doctor is called immediately. When the doctor cannot be reached, the interne may carry on treatment until such time as the physician is available to advise.

The men in white suits work on a rotation system five days a week for nine hours daily. One interne is always on duty nights and on weekends, and all are on call at any hour, day and night.

The "doctor in the house" makes daily ward rounds with various attending physicians to learn the art of bedside patient care.

He visits the clinics twice weekly with the medical staff to learn diagnosis and management of problem cases.

Experience in treatment of patients is acquired in operating room, case room and ward work. He works with X-ray and in the extensive laboratory, including post-mortem examinations. He learns to handle emergencies under supervision and assist attending doctors in treatment.

Some of Victoria's outstanding doctors provide series of lectures for the internes whose study is assisted by the large medical reference library in the hospital. Being on call "round the clock" if nothing else, puts the internes into the swing of a practicing doctor's "schedule" when it is not uncommon to be rattled from slumber by a phone call from Mrs. Jones whose Johnny has consumed something from his chemistry set.

Broken-Bottle Threat

Teacher Challenges Police

Esquimalt police were challenged last night to explain why they had laid no charge against a 17-year-old youth who is alleged to have pressed a teacher's stomach at Esquimalt High School May 31 and threatened to kill him.

Challenge was issued by Patrick Thomas, the teacher involved in the incident.

He told The Daily Colonist that he left Victoria in June with the understanding that a police charge would be laid. Mr. Thomas is attending summer school at the UBC.

is not bound to give his reasons for "not laying a charge," he said, "but in view of the fact that it is now a public matter, there should have been enough evidence for the police to do it."

was one of the first things they had

Mr. Thomas suggested it would help clear up some misunderstandings if the Esquimalt police said if they could lay charges, and if not, why not, in view of the fact that they had four witnesses of the incident. "If there was sufficient evidence, they can practice by themselves what they were instructed in the classes."

A special meeting of the Esquimalt Police Commission hall, 8 p.m. tomorrow, to discuss the situation.

In the Swim

No Clothes Sense

By MARGIE NAYSMITH

I keep telling the youngsters at Happisland that soon I will be able to pave a road from here to New York with undershirts, underpants and socks that are left behind each day after the Colonist learn-to-swim classes.

For some reason my nudging swimmers just don't claim these items after class. Some of them have absolutely no idea what they were wearing before they donned their swimming garb.

About the only piece of street clothing that can be retrieved are socks, but only when one of a pair is lost. By looking at the one still in possession, the task of finding its mate is simplified.

PROPULSION STAGE

With the third week of classes behind us, we are well into the propulsion stage. The waters of Elk Lake were chopped thousands of times each day with stroking arms.

Attendance throughout the past week remained high even though it was so chilly some days that the youngsters haven't been able to have as much time for their own swimming pleasure during the play periods.

Bus Strike Causes Chaos

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's biggest bus strike in a generation has stranded millions of travellers, including holidaymakers and workers.

Six unions called out 100,000 provincial buses Friday morning to back a demand for a £1 weekly wage increase.

The strike leaders said their action put some 25,000 buses off the roads.

FRENCH NAME

Cape Breton was known as the Royale during its French occupation between 1713 and 1758.

One of the boys told me: "You have everything else at these classes, well organized. How about the weather?"

All I could say was that we are all pulling for a good decision from the weatherman this week.

Tension among the youngsters is a problem that takes a lot of time to iron out. It seems to appear only in those who find it disturbing to have to keep up with the class in drilled instruction.

For instance, it may rattle a little boy or girl standing in the chilly water when I bark the orders to get down or stroke. He or she may not be just quite ready to take the plunge. But, of course, we can't get everyone back into position because of the others.

The tension means the same in them as it would to us if we were ordered to dive from a high tower on the back of an order. First impulse with the back is to stand fast and think it over.

THE BEST CURE

Tension makes itself known within some youngsters when they plead they are "just a little sick" and ask to watch the proceedings from shore. The best cure is to talk them into going in by themselves and lie on their tummies while I speak to them personally.

Statistics of Inflation

Where the Money Goes

By TOM GREEN

Colonist Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Dominion Bureau of Statistics is working on a revision of the cost of living.

It isn't unfortunately, the sort of a revision that would be caused by a sudden drop of prices of consumer goods, welcome as that would be. It's simply a statistical revision designed to let Canadians know just how much prices have increased.

The latest index, known as the consumer price index, was for the month of June. The report showed an index of 121.6, against a 1949 base of 100.

In ordinary language this means that the householder who paid $100 in 1949 for a mixed package of goods and services essential to living would pay $121.60 for the same items in June.

The revision now under way is concerned mainly with the makeup of the "mixed package" and the relative importance of its components.

OIL AND GAS

The wartime cost-of-living index, for instance, leaned heavily on coal prices as an indicator of the cost of heating homes. The postwar method of computing the index had to be changed to increase the importance of oil and gas in living costs.

The bureau right now figures that its research on living costs presents as true a picture as possible. But changes are being prepared constantly to meet changing conditions.

The present index takes into account five major expense factors: food, shelter, clothing, household operation, and "other commodities and services."

In the latter category are such items as medical, dental and hospital costs, transportation costs, haircuts for men, automobile operating expenses, drugs and a host of other factors.

"Household operations" items include heating costs, supplies, dry cleaning, shoe repairs and many others.

SIGNIFICANT ITEMS

The food index, which is calculated to affect about 32 per cent of the cost of living, is based on price research for about 160 food products picked as being "significant."

Monthly price sampling is done in most Canadian centres, with full-time price reporters in eight or nine cities across the Dominion. The bureau keeps about 25 persons busy compiling the totals in Ottawa. In certain of the cities, price samplers are employed on a part-time basis, working about 10 or 12 days in a month. They report to regional offices from where the reports are forwarded to Ottawa.

The cost-of-living index, a matter of great public interest when prices began to jump in wartime, first became a topic of general conversation when the bureau set average prices between 1935 and 1939 as its base of 100.

The index rose to about 156 by 1949, when a new revision was made, the base reset at 100 for 1949 and the term "cost-of-living index" abandoned.

The bureau explains that the name "consumer price index" was substituted because the old term implied that the price research took into account factors other than the increase in prices of consumer goods.

With the present revision going on, there is a difference of opinion as to whether a new base should be set, with possibly 1955 average prices being taken as 100 for future calculations.

Whether or not this should be done, while it is an interesting subject for discussion by statisticians, is secondary to the main feature of the revision — changing the system of calculation to conform to the changes in relative importance of different items.

Progress at Ripple Rock

GOOD progress being made at Ripple Rock in the undermining of the twin submerged peaks, which have been a constant menace to navigation on the inside passage for almost a century, inspires the hope that work may be finished this year. Up to the present tunnelling has made excellent headway, engineering forecasts have been confirmed, and there seems no reason to anticipate any unlooked-for development at the scene. Though it was tardy in starting, Canada is making no mistake in putting an end to a dangerous reef which through the years has taken a steady toll of lives and shipping.

If the demolition is successful, and there is every reason to believe that this will be the outcome, there should be 40 feet of water over the new level of the outcropping at low tides. The delicate task for the engineers is to see that the tops of the twin peaks when blown will be dispersed and not remain to block the channel in a new alignment. As an engineering problem, Ripple Rock has drawn attention far and wide. From a navigational standpoint, full clearance of the inside passage at this point, when that is accomplished, will be noted by every marine underwriter, shipowner and ship's master doing business on the Pacific seaboard in Canada.

The dream of pioneering days, that Ripple Rock might be used for a bridge with which to link Vancouver Island and the Mainland, was a valid one at the time. But experience since has shown that it had two great objections: a free channel up the inside passage to Alaska is necessary and must come into greater use steadily; and the former concept of a series of causeways to the Mainland, costly and difficult in itself, still would not solve the problem of economic road distances to Vancouver over some of the most broken shoreline on this coast. Airways are today establishing a better "causeway," far more conveniently and at less cost.

New Traffic Scramble

EXPERIMENTS with "scramble" lights to see if the system would suit Victoria's traffic conditions will begin today at the intersection of Douglas and Yates Streets and will be watched with interest. This system appears to be the best available method of control under most conditions at the busiest intersections, but there is one drawback. The frequency of the light changes has to be adjusted to the pace of the "average" pedestrian. That may not trouble the brisk walker but can be awkward for the slow or feeble.

For tests here the light will be adjusted to allow a maximum of 20 seconds for a crossing on foot. In a place like Victoria with its high proportion of elderly people there may not be enough time to reach in safety the other side of a street as wide as Douglas. Without hurrying—and many people here cannot hurry—one can walk 70 or 80 feet in 20 seconds, which might be insufficient time for a diagonal crossing of Douglas Street even if the pedestrian stepped out the moment the light changed in his favor. Experiments may show that the interval should be lengthened.

While the tests are going on motorists should be especially careful at the intersection chosen for them. It may be found that the intersection is still occupied by pedestrians when the lights allow vehicles to move, in which case the law of course puts on drivers the obligation of avoiding accidents. Besides, at the start there is bound to be confusion and timidity among some who have not had previous experience of the scramble system.

Anything but a Joke

INVESTIGATION into the disappearance and mutilation of several pieces of mail in the city has ended in the incident being put down to a juvenile "prank." That is an unfortunate use of the word, which the dictionary defines as a practical joke. Tampering with the mails is never a joke no matter what the circumstances may be, and if the young culprits are caught that should be very firmly impressed upon them. It would be a serious thing if the idea ever got abroad that pulling letters out of a mailbox, opening some and stuffing others into a hiding place could be treated as a piece of childish playfulness.

Briton's Fine Victory

GREAT Britain's new champion miler, Derek Ibbotson, whose time of 3 minutes and 57.2 seconds won from a very fast field on Friday, not only broke the world's record held by John Landy, of Australia, but also was the culmination of a race in which four men broke through the old barrier of the four-minute mile first cracked by another Briton. It may be some time before such a race will be seen again. In addition to Ibbotson, Ron Delaney placing second ran the mile in 3:58.9; Stanislav Jungwirth, third, in 3:59.1; and Ken Wood, fourth in a time of 3:59.3. Before Dr. Bannister's great feat such clocking would have been considered miraculous.

Island Editors Say

Too Long at School

A little sound reasoning might call for some of our young people to be disciplined by the workaday world instead of spending their time at school following pursuits which to a growing extent are non-academic, for example, home economics.

Better it would be if more of our young girls were trained in the shops and institutions of our country in which positions they could make a contribution to the operation of society and at the same time help to effect the return of married women to the home.

Through some change along the line, society could look for an improvement in the problem of juvenile delinquency. We can not solve it by keeping our young people at school until they are ready to be married, the step many of them take within a year of graduation.

What Price Farming?

It's no wonder that between the census years of 1941 and 1951 the number of Canadian workers classified by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as employed in agricultural occupations fell from 1,082,000 to 826,000.

That's a sharp drop, and it reflects, in the main, the fact that most farmers are no longer able to pay their employees a wage which might be termed reasonable in this day and age. Nor does there appear to be any prospect of better times for the farmer; he is simply low man on the totem pole in the law of supply and demand.

If ever there was a time when efforts of the federal and provincial departments of agriculture should be concentrated on an endeavor to stabilize the agricultural industry, that time is now.

—PARKVILLE PROGRESS

Where's That Breakwater?

If the ferry service between Hornby and Denman Islands is worth having, surely it is worth protecting. The recent stoppage of service between the two islands as the result of damage to the ferry serves to emphasize once again the need for proper protection for the craft, against the sudden gales which blow up in the channel.

It is high time that whichever government is responsible—even a joint effort if the responsibility cannot be satisfactorily placed—provide a breakwater so that the islanders' only auto link with Vancouver Island can be afforded the much-needed protection.

The islanders are virtually cut off when the ferry is not operating and not only that, it must be remembered that the tourist industry plays a large part in the island's economy and if visitors cannot reach Hornby then it becomes not only a nuisance but also a financial injury.

Everyone Should Benefit

This week marks another significant occasion for the Comox Valley as the first water flows through the Royston Improvement District's new system.

It means most to the people who have waited a long time for the opportunity of turning on their taps to an assured water supply. But ultimately the system will benefit the entire area as the availability of an adequate water system and improved protection of fire hydrant facilities attracts more new home construction.

Centennial Sculpture

We haven't any ideas on what would make an appropriate centennial sculpture, but there is no doubt whatsoever about what we don't like and it includes the three models chosen by the special panel of judges in the recent contest. By the mysterious standard of modern art they may have been terrific, but they left us cold.

A statue of Sir James Douglas sounds like a safe alternative, but we still question the ethics of having the school children of the province pay the shot. Patronage of the arts, if it is to mean anything, should be voluntary and it should be discerning. We doubt if the ten cent contributions from the kids will fit in either category.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN the Legionary there is a picture of Canadian and U.S. veterans marching together and the caption says: "Hands Across the Border." Sometimes I've wondered about hands across the rising line.

After the guns have stopped, I mean.

It has often been said that if troops on both sides could be consulted beforehand they'd never get into action against each other. Unfortunately, like the dispatches they never write, they are not asked. But do animosities last long after nature has covered the scars of the battlefield?

I doubt it, really. Rhetorically and in collective abstract perhaps they do; but not individually. I know that once I found it hard to regard a captured German machine-gunner with the kind of hatred we'd been pepped up by bayonet practice to adopt. He was such a good-natured Saxon one felt impelled to return his friendly smile.

And this was not after the war was over but shortly after he'd been trying to shoot our heads off.

An ex-air force colleague who languished for some time in a POW camp in the last war tells me there were good and bad among his guards. In the matter of decency he thought there was not much difference between them and their prisoners.

That probably sums it up; I dare say German prisoners in Canadian camps could say something similar. In themselves belligerents may often be like Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's daughter—ditto under the skin.

Just these past few days President Eisenhower, for example, has been speaking very highly of his old "friend," Marshal Zhukov. Top-ranking generals can afford a more academic approach towards their opposite numbers than can troopers in the ranks—even if Montgomery's initial approach to Rommel was an intent to "hit him for six."

Zhukov of course was a sort of colleague of Eisenhower's, assuming you can assess Russian behaviour during the war as co-operative—quite a tax on one's generosity—and not his opponent in battle. He is most definitely an antagonist of the cold war, however, and so I hope the president isn't too naïve about things. I doubt his "friendship" with the Soviet marshal was much more than superficial anyway.

My theme has to do with passions that have died quietly, however. And on a less exalted level.

German to it is the offer of a Heidelberg professor to make a pair of artificial hands for an ex-paratrooper who dropped at Arnhem with militant design. A British group of former airborne troops was entertained recently in Bonn by their one-time enemies and the professor noted the awkward split hooks which the maimed soldier used in place of hands. The latter will return to Heidelberg for "fittings and German war veterans will pay his expenses.

That symbolizes the attitude of most returned men towards their former enemies, I fancy.

In Victoria for instance there are a number of newcomers who fought against their future fellow citizens; either in the German army itself or in one or other of the Axis components. Likely enough one of them may settle down next door to a Canadian veteran hand the same number of years from the war.

Over the fence, I'm sure, they'll discover that each is very like the other, and that when they were potting shots at one another it was, come to think of it, a stupid sort of business.

They might not change buttons, or regimental badges, but they are most likely to agree that if the matter had been left to them they wouldn't have been on opposite sides of a battlefield front line.

Fighting the Paralysis of Inflation

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

London correspondent of the Daily Colonist, now visiting Victoria

BRITISH cabinet ministers' current explorations—talks with heads of state, industries and trades union leaders to test reaction to the formation of a board to investigate the causes of inflation are a second attempt and are not likely to be any more successful than a previous effort at the beginning of the year.

The trades unions are not sympathetic. They maintain that prices and wages must be comparative so as not to lower standards of living. Industrialists claim prices are rising because of wage increases. Both statements are true.

It would be equally helpful if a board was to be formed which would decide for all time which came first, the egg or the chicken. There always has been inflation and always will be inflation. It is unhealthy when the rate is greater than the amount of interest available from the simplest and most convenient form of saving.

In Britain this is the savings banks. They are paying 2½ per cent interest. The rate of inflation in Britain today is about six per cent.

Three years ago the Ford Motor Company produced a small car which would sell in Britain for £350 including tax. It was definitely a car built to a price; so much so that even trafficators were omitted to keep the price right. It was on sale only a few days when the government increased the rate of purchase (sales) tax. That ended the £350 car. It also ended the belief of many manufacturers that by ingenuity, enterprise and efficiency they could beat inflation. They were beaten every time by the government.

The coal mining industry is nationalized and operated by the government through the national coal board. The price of coal has doubled in five years. In many industries coal represents 20 per cent of the purchase price of the manufactured article.

Coal prices affect transportation costs and the price of gas and electricity. Transportation represents up to 10 per cent of the retail commodity prices. Gas and electricity costs are a vital factor in every industrial, professional and domestic budget.

Increased rail fares and freight rates mean an extra halfpenny on practically every item in the shops.

Time Capsule...

By G. E. Mortimore

Battle of Cowichan

TWENTY-FIVE years ago today delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa decided to appoint committees to study promotion of trade within the Commonwealth, customs, commercial relations with foreign countries, financial questions, and methods of economic co-operation.

Four Canadian swimming records were broken at the Dominion Olympic trials and Canadian championship meet in the Crystal Garden, No. 8 C. swimmers were among the champions.

Kaye Don drove his speedboat Miss England III over Loch Lomond at 117.43 miles an hour to win back the world's water speed record for Great Britain.

The St. Lawrence seaway treaty was signed for the United States and Canada by Henry L. Stimson, U.S. secretary of state, and Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian ambassador to Washington. But it had to be ratified by Parliament and by Congress. In the latter house it was destined to run into snags that delayed it for more than 20 years.

FIFTY years ago angry residents of Cowichan district gathered in the agricultural hall at Duncan (as the town was then called) to protest against a proposal to lease fishing rights in Cowichan Bay to Capital City Packing Co. and allow seine netting in the bay.

The housewife finds herself with an extra three or four shillings on the week's food bill. Her husband has to pay more to go to and from work. Her gas and electricity bills go up 7 to 10 per cent. Now telephones, postage and the cost of money orders are going up. These overheads will be reflected in retail prices.

These basic causes of inflation are government-caused in Britain. It is difficult for a rational person to blame the Bill Smiths of Britain when they get wholeheartedly behind their trades unions and demand wage increases to cover the increased cost of domestic bills. Without it standards of living go down.

It does not need a board to discover that. It is a fact known to every housewife in Britain. She knows, too, that she is better off spending her money on worthwhile goods than by putting it in the savings bank. The trade-in value of a prewar typewriter in good condition is greater than the original purchase price. The years of use are free.

The value of a prewar house has increased four-fold. "Too much money chasing too few goods" is in fact the common man's personal effort to keep pace with it. He prefers things which depreciate slowly to money which depreciates rapidly.

Economists are notorious for conflicting diagnoses of the same disease but most agree that the first step to stop inflation is to increase the savings bank rate of interest. If it were doubled to 5 per cent it would make saving more attractive than commodity purchasing. The second step is to reduce taxation in the point where tax concessions are greater than price rises, especially income tax.

If the government met inevitable commodity increases by comparative tax concessions prices would remain static. The treasury argues that the theory is sound but in fact the government would lose so much revenue that it could not carry on. This is disputed. First because the government has a substantial surplus, second because wage increases most seriously affect the government because it is the nation's biggest employer. One person in four in Britain is directly or indirectly on the government payroll.

By abolishing expensively collected taxes with their army of enforcement officers, by simplifying the whole tax structure, tens of thousands of civil servants could be dispensed with and diverted to productive industry which would increase the comparative tax yield. One economist has declared that if nationalized industries were ordered to cut costs to consumers by one per cent per annum and if the government cut taxation by a minimum of 2 per cent per annum inflation would be ended.

As things are the government proposes a board to advise on inflation, yet this year the government itself has increased the price of coal, gas, electricity, transport, communications, national health insurance and the salaries of members of parliament. These increases are represented in every commodity price. The government alone can stop inflation.

The situation is really Gilbertian. It is completed by stick-in-the-mud treasury officials who cannot distinguish causes and effects allied to the size of a grossly inflated civil service. If the government took the lead by setting an example there is every indication that trades unions as well as industrialists would co-operate. Technical efficiency and increased production would do the rest.

The Packsack
OF GREGORY CLARK

THE forestry boys in northern Ontario report a most curious case. Some boys met a skunk on the trail. When they sighted it the little animal was staggering and floundering about in a most helpless fashion. The boys approached closer, and saw that the skunk had what they took to be a mouthful of feathers.

On closer inspection they perceived that it was not the feathers but porcupine quills in the skunk's mouth. They got the forestry men to come and shoot the skunk to end its fatal misery. It was then found that in addition to its mouth the skunk's entire side was plastered with quills, obviously as the result of the porcupine having slapped it repeatedly with its powerful and destructive tail.

This gives rise to a most interesting speculation. Here are two animals that are the proud untouchables of the wilds. All other creatures give either of them a wide berth, with few exceptions. They say a wolverine and one or two other predators will tackle a porcupine, and that the great horned owl will sometimes swipe up a skunk.

But how did these two masters of their destiny meet in battle? I suppose both are gifted with a natural arrogance. Accustomed by instinct and heredity to see other creatures make way for them, did they meet in the entrance to a cave, or in a hollow log? Here was a collision that nature herself designed. It was like two armed gunmen meeting. Or the encounter between two giant industrialists who had reached the final last moment of corruption, which power begets, and which is pride.

Historians still argue about the Battle of Gettysburg. What mistakes did Lee make, and what Meade? Should the skunk have depended on his long range weapon and fired it from six feet into the porcupine's eye? By what error in strategy or tactics did he close with the porcupine? It was a battle involving gas warfare and the bayonet. And the bayonet obviously won.

But I would like to bet that a very odoriferous porcupine is climbing the highest trees he can find to let the wind repair him.

And if the Indians are right, the porcupine won't be subject to hay fever or colds in the head for some time to come.

Off Their Own Bats

The power of parliamentary bodies rests on their control of taxation and supply. Any measure for appropriating any part of the public revenue must originate with the assembled representatives of the people. And both Houses definitely ruled only a few months ago.

And yet a defeated prime minister and a rebuffed premier have "granted" an increase in civil service pay, off their own bats. And an unconfirmed prime minister has acted likewise and permitted his minister of defence to announce increases in pay and aids out of the public purse. And the head of the Diefenbaker party should know that he cannot reduce governmental costs and increase farmers, without cutting the silly "defence" expenditures by at least a billion. Of this no mention.

Resounding Success

I should like to take advantage of your columns to congratulate Mr. Ian Ross on the resounding success of the Butchart Gardens symphony concert.

Mr. Ross' efforts may well result in making the Butchart Gardens as orchestrally famous in the Pacific Northwest as it is horticulturally.

Apart from the pleasure the garden and concert give to our local communities, they also provide a powerful magnet for countless thousands of tourists.

A Matter of Temper

In your editorial of July 18 you say "If Saanich is ever to get anywhere as a thriving prosperous community with well-ordered public affairs there will have to be a change in the calibre or the behavior of its elected representatives."

In this connection my mind goes back to the manner in which the late Jack Moore chaired the conventions of the Canadian Legion over a period of 20 years. When Jack was presiding over the debates of 800 delegates he was never known to lose his temper. Occasionally, when his co-chairman got into a jam during his temporary absence, Jack would return and take back the gavel, smiling grimly at the seething delegates. He then went calmly to the very root of the question under debate, making certain that only one man spoke at a time.

May I suggest that the reve of Saanich must refrain from the luxury of losing his temper and endeavor to lower the temperatures of the Saanich council meetings. If everybody at these meetings is going to fly off the handle, the council will remain the sterile abode of disorder and inefficiency.

Path for Youth

Regarding the most recent suggestions which have been presented in the controversial centennial statue issue, such personalities as Sir James Douglas, a pioneer school-ma'm, and Alan Woodrow in action with an axe have been damned before our eyes.

Obviously, each has its individualistic justification for glorification, but personally I feel very strongly on the point of eliminating all political, denominational, and individual aspects from the provincial centennial statue—in fact the only logical suggestion which has been put forward to date is that of the erection of a giant illuminated statue of Christ upon a pinnacle which is visible to residents of both this island and the mainland of B.C.

If every juvenile in this province has to contribute toward the $20,000 required for the project, then let as many people as possible point with innate pride at a symbol of civilized and Christian advancement—an effigy which is symbolic of the only path left open for youth to follow in this world torn asunder by greed and the avariciousness of man to place himself upon a pedestal above his every brother.

Crowning Pleasure

Four delightful days in Victoria! The shops, quaint restaurants, good food, the Butchart Gardens, marine drives, all add to one's pleasures, and help Victoria truly earn the title of "a bit of Old England."

However, the crowning pleasure of our trip came on our last evening in Victoria. By chance we learned of Jerry Gosley's "Smile Show" and found this unique local group a most talented and versatile troupe.

American visitors look for and enjoy the unusual. This show presents to the audience a delightful glimpse of the English music hall variety show. Each performer is an artist of ability and the "Smile Show" is an unusual, added attraction to the many delightful experiences open to the summer visitor to Victoria.

Jerry Gosley is to be congratulated for assembling such old-world talent in a lively and fun-filled program. MR. AND MRS. E. HOWARD GREEN, 5500 Golden Gate Avenue, Oakland, California.

Saanich Bickering

The editorial on Saanich council squabbling was much appreciated. You do not know the half of what Saanich ratepayers have to pay for the squabbling and inefficiency. Although two alleged public highways, the Interurban Road and West Saanich highway, with only three feet of private property between them, pass my gate, for about two months last winter I was without any vehicular access to my property and had to carry coal in pails across these two roads and through a ditch to keep warm while the snow was on the ground.

When I asked the council to give me access to the highway they said that the Interurban was a public road so they did not have to give me access to the highway. When the Interurban filled up with snow then it ceased to become a public road and they informed me that they could do nothing about it unless they assessed me some sort of frontage tax. They also advised me to get in touch with the provincial department of highways and try to get from them access to the highway. The highway department said it would cost me $150 to put in a two-foot tile and cover it over. They also reminded me that it was Saanich who collected my taxes.

And so with the northwest corner of my 12 acres only 480 feet from Oldfield's Garage and Jack Durrant's store, I am praying for amalgamation and/or an open winter.

VISCOMTE HENRI DE LA BRIERE

Monsieur Tells Why

Do You Smell Like a Goat?

By JUDY GRAHAM

Expert on perfumes, world traveller and Croix de Guerre winner, Monsieur le Viscompte Henri de la Briere arrived in Victoria Friday to visit an "old war buddy," John McIntosh at 2907 Beach.

His route from Paris to Victoria included stops at Baghdad, Bombay, New Delhi, Kashmir, Singapore, Manila, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Honolulu and Vancouver.

M. de la Briere is visiting companies for Guerlain, which was established in 1828 and is one of the oldest perfume houses in the world.

He advises that the next time you apply your favorite perfume, you should stop to think what it is made of. It contains concentrated oils from flowers, synthetic materials, a fixative that comes from the stomach of whales and musk from Tibetan goats.

Guerlain's most famous perfume, "Shalimar," was named after a garden in Kashmir. "Mitsouko" was taken from the opera Madame Butterfly.

One long-selling eau de cologne, "Imperial," was first made up for Napoleon Bonaparte in 1852.

Flu Strikes 750 Miners

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—More than 750 African miners have been stricken in the last three days with a disease doctors believe may be Asian flu.

MANILA (Reuters)—An influenza epidemic was reported today to have broken out in the northwest area of Pagasin province, central Luzon, where a flood last Sunday left 141 persons dead and 180 missing.

Arbitrators Appointed

Appointment of a conciliation board to settle the contract dispute between the CPR and some 450 employees of the Empress Hotel and Crystal Garden has been announced.

W. G. Stone of Victoria was appointed board chairman by Labor Minister Lyle Wicks.

A. G. E. Robbins of Victoria is the employers' nominee on the board, and George Home of Vancouver was chosen by the employees.

The employees, represented by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers, Local 276, are seeking higher wages, a health and welfare plan, and other benefits.

New Arrests In Hungary Puzzle West

BUDAPEST (Reuters)—Police are believed to have detained several hundred Hungarians in a new wave of arrests sweeping the country in the last three days, informed sources said yesterday.

Those held were believed to include many office employees and other white-collar workers and a number of former members of workers' councils. Police arrested many at their homes at night, these sources said. No outstanding political figures or other leading personalities were reported among them.

One report put the number of arrests as high as 500 but there was no confirmation of this.

Western observers here said they were puzzled by the reported arrests because they saw no apparent reason for them with the country free of any signs of disorder eight months after the crushing of last fall's Hungarian uprising.

They said the police action was reminiscent of a series of wide-spread arrests on a larger

Must We Be Ruled by Mediocrity?

I always find John Crosby's television column in the Colonist well worth reading. He is evidently a well-read and thoughtful man; his judgments seem to be sound and well-considered; his writing is witty, concise and clear; he has never subscribed to the widely-held view that television should pandor to the most moronic level of taste.

I was surprised, then, to see his column devoted recently to a letter from a friend in England ridiculing the BBC Third Program.

Throwing stones at the Third is a frequent pastime with the backs of the gutter press in England, but I had thought that such an easy sport was only popular with semi-literate scribblers in need of a large, stationary target on which to land their clumsy verbal haymakers. Crosby's friend was clearly not of this verminous company, and it is charitable to assume that he was a journalist with a deadline to meet and no other material to hand.

A moment's thought should suffice to convince an intelligent person that a radio program which sets out to broadcast the very best in music and drama—especially those "difficult" infrequently performed works which are not a "commercial proposition"—is performing a very valuable service to the community.

In addition to doing this, the Third Program commissions a great deal of work from poets and musicians, and presents the most intelligent discussions and talks on contemporary problems—political, economic, moral, religious, sociological, historical—that I have ever heard. The cream of these talks appears every week in the Listener, published by the BBC and read by about a quarter of a million people.

But even if these talks and poems did not find a wider audience in the Listener (which costs less than a nickel a week yet packs more mental stimulation into one issue than some universities can provide in a seven-month course), I would still uphold the right of the Third Program's 50,000 listeners to their favorite program, even if it is provided at the expense of 5,000,000 radio licence holders who never tune in to the Third.

After all, we don't allow the 80 per cent of Canada's population who don't use the public libraries to interfere with the 11 per cent who do. A public library is rightly considered a necessity in a civilized community.

Only a small minority attends a university. Are the majority to contract out of their financial obligation to maintain that university?

One of education's most neglected tasks today is that of teaching our young people to think for themselves. However we try to avoid it—and we have produced some remarkably ingenious substitutes—our more gifted students are sure, sooner or later, to demand something solid to bite on: you don't grow strong teeth on the spooned mush that forms the staple diet in many schools today.

One justification for programs like those of the BBC Third and the CBC's better ones is that they do stimulate thought, arouse interest and provoke discussion.

For $3 a year, when I lived in England, the Third Program provided me with music and theatre that would otherwise have been out of my reach. It gave me all the late quartets of Beethoven, all the symphonies of Bruckner and Mahler, Neville Coghill's production of the Canterbury Tales, Bertrand Russell arguing with Father Copleston about the existence of God, Stephen Potter's "Lifemanship" lectures, Joyce's "Exiles," David Jones' "In Parenthesis" and Dylan Thomas's "Under Milk Wood" to name a few highlights that come readily to mind.

Nearly 100 years ago John

Liberty foresaw that the chief enemy of "private judgment" was the "mass of mediocre minds"; he was alarmed at the presence in democratic society of majority pressures which he described as being more repressive and intolerant than even unenlightened despotism. If he were alive today he would find little to make him change his mind.

I should like to ask this question: Does democracy really mean that everyone must have only what the majority wants, and nothing that the majority does not want? If so, then it is high time that we overhauled democracy.

Sound Is His Hobby

A 56-year-old Victoria sound can be made indistinguishable. Instead, each microphone work, people now prefer natural sound over the "hollowness" of old-time single-speaker sound.

Mr. Macey has always worked in the electrical business and has had sound as a hobby for 25 years. He's been in business for himself for six years and has equipment worth more than $10,000.

But none of it is at home because "I'm so busy in the evenings I don't have time to listen to it." When I want to play my recordings I take them to the shop.

News of this experiment prompted Mr. Macey to try quality sound each year for something more than the garish system of recent years. He believes that this is because radio has accustomed the public to "clear sound, sound without distortion, even if it's too loud," and in public address

Mr. Macey, whose sound company at 823 Broughton gets most of the larger sound jobs in Victoria, has found that the public in Victoria and elsewhere

"demanded more and better quality sound each year for about the last five years."

TV Preview

Coming Up: One Good Week

Prince Philip, a band concert in the park, a boat race, a music show and a baseball game add up to a good week for television any time, and a wonderful week considering what we've had so far this summer.

Take last week, for instance. The only outstanding TV event, the world tennis championships, was cancelled. Anything would be better than that, but, fortunately, the next seven days are long on quality as well as quantity.

At press time, it was announced that U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will speak on TV tomorrow night. He will discuss the disarmament talks in a show on CBS, NBC and possibly ABC. Time was not known.

Doing it day by day:
Sunday, Prince Philip emcees a multi-nation show opening the Geophysical Year (channels 2 and 6, 4:45 p.m.), an Alcoa Hour musical (channel 4, 9 p.m.), Lake Tahoe hydroplane race films (channel 5, 11:30 a.m.) again on channel 4, 10:30 Monday.

Monday—New Fred Waring show (channel 11, 2 p.m.), Phyllis Love stars on Studio One (channel 11, 9 p.m.); Tuesday, Nat Cole, Sammy Davis and the Hi-Los get together (channel 4, 10 p.m.); Wednesday—Eddie Machen fights Bob Baker (channel 5, 7 p.m.).

Thursday, 11: Friday Juliette ends the Cool Pepper series (channel 2, 10 p.m.); Saturday, Yankee and Detroit oldtimers play baseball (channels 11 and 12, 10:30 a.m.).

Just about every poor movie already seen on TV will be shown again during the week. The only exceptions to this rule are "Encore" on Wednesday, "Passport to Pimlico" and "In Which We Serve" on Saturday.

Odd, isn't it, that they're all English?

10:00 a.m.—Home shows this year's Christmas decorations (channel 2).

2:00 p.m.—Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians replace Garry Moore weekdays for six weeks (channel 11).

4:00—A special hearing about a Tacoma hospital controversy replace Godfrey, Strike It Rich and a movie (channel 11).

7:30—Judith Anderson in "Louise," a Maughan story (channel 6).

8:00—Seen Those Whiting Girls Yet? (channels 11 and 12).

8:30—Bold Journey inspects Mexico closely (channel 5).

9:00—Harold Craig has $38,500 on 21 (channel 4); new time for What's the Story? (channel 5); Studio One presents Phyllis Love, Jim Backus in "Love With a Stranger" (channel 11).

Esks Only WIFU Club to Escape Serious Injury

DON GETTY
... Leads Esk's attack.

Western conference football teams trying to unseat the champion Edmonton Eskimos are getting no help from the injury dealer—at least not so far.

After a week of two-day workouts, including several tough scrimmages, the Grey Cup champions are free of serious ailments. Not one player is out of full-scale training.

Other clubs in the five-team conference cannot say the same at this date—less than two weeks before the pre-season exhibition run begins.

Calgary Stampede have several men on the limp or recovering from injury of some kind; Winnipeg Blue Bombers have a couple out of action; Saskatchewan Roughriders say their hurts are not serious, but several players have had to slow down a little with them.

British Columbia Lions aren't reporting anything serious in the injury line at the moment, but they've lost several players for one reason or another.

The Eskimos, who started training a week later than the other four clubs this year because the coach felt most of his players couldn't handle the heat, have patterns, play the first of three exhibition games Aug. 2.

They will meet B.C. Lions three times, at Portland, Ore., Aug. 2, at Vancouver Aug. 3 and at San Francisco Aug. 11. Lions are to meet Calgary Stampede in their first exhibition contest July 29 at Vancouver. Stampede have a game at Montreal Aug. 1.

LOT TO ACCOMPLISH

"We've got an awful lot to try to accomplish between now and Aug. 1," says coach Frank (Pop) Ivy of the Eskimos. "Providing the injuries stay away from us, we should be ready."

Eskimos have 20 imports in camp, 10 of them returnees from last year. Centre John Tatum and end-halfback Bill Rowe are missing. Only two of last year's Canadians, Don Kelly and Steve Mendel, have left the club.

Ivy has Canadian Don Getty lined up as first-string quarterback, switching Jackie Parker to half. As insurance, Esks have brought in Texan Don Flynn, a Houston quarterback who also runs well as a half.

Two minor injuries—to line-men Roger Nelson and Tom Pearson—have cleared up.

At Winnipeg, rookie-coach Bud Grant has 30 players in camp, including six holdover imports and 13 new ones.

The mishaps which have hit his club hardest are a knee operation last spring that is still keeping tackle Ivan Kaminski, from Baltimore Colts, out of scrimmages, and a calcium deposit above a knee of end Barry McBride, who won't be in action for two or three weeks.

PLEON IMPRESSIVE

Among those most impressive at the Bomber camp is Kenny Pleon, a quarterback from Iowa, of whom Grant says:

"He can do so many things it's hard to imagine our team without him."

Bombers have two other quarterbacks on hand, Gus Martin from Chicago and Chuck Curtis from Texas Christian. Also attracting attention is Canadian halfback Jerry James, back in football after a year's layoff to fix hip trouble with Toronto Maple Leafs. The absence apparently hasn't had any effect on his efficiency.

Bombers have two exhibition games against Hamilton Aug. 1 and Ottawa Aug. 10.

Coach Frank Filchuck has been working the Roughriders at Regina since July 1. Several injuries have resulted from rough scrimmages, but none is believed serious.

Training camp has indicated there are several inch holdovers from last year among the Americans. These include tackle Martin Ruby, halfback Ken Carpenter, fullback Bobby Marlow, punter and halfback Larry Isbell and quarterback Frank Tripucka. End Stan Williams, who hasn't yet reported, also is expected to be a regular when the season opens.

Riders have three exhibitions, at Toronto July 31, Montreal Aug. 6 and Ottawa Aug. 8.

B.C. Lions are training at Kamloops and Calgary. Stampede at Nelson, stories of injury and desertion appear regularly.

Several new U.S. players have left coach Clem Crowe's Lions training for one reason or another, slowly trimming down the number of imports from the more than 30 that started out. Biggest loss is considered to be halfback Paul Cameron, who never did reach the workout.

CANUCKS GET CHANCE

Crowe says he's going to "give the Canadians a chance" in this year's team. He's thinking particularly of Hal Sparrow of Vancouver and Joe Yamauchi of Calgary, leading candidates for backfield spots. He says he thinks at least one of these players can hold his place in the starting backfield, releasing an import for specialist duties as a trouble shooter.

Crowe is touting an unknown import named Rick Kaser, who he says is "the best in camp."

Halfbacks Tom Allman, West Virginia, and Bill Carrington are sidelined with injuries and Sparrow and Yamauchi are battling for a backfield berth with Don Vico.

Calgary Stampede have had injury troubles. Halfback Al Pollard was slowed up for a while with a groin muscle injury. Import end John Pyatt had a pulled muscle; import centre Pete Bellow had infected heels; Canadian guard Harry Langford had pulled rib muscles and end Willie Robert wound up with pulled leg muscles.

The WIFU schedule opens Aug. 15 with Edmonton at Winnipeg.

Rotarians Win Second National League Title

Rotary, first-half champions of the National Little League, clinched second-half honors yesterday by edging North Kiwanis, 5-2, in an extra inning at Little League Park.

The winners pushed across three runs in the top of the seventh inning for the victory. Barry Maloney tagged a two-run homer for Rotary in the second inning.

In yesterday's other National League game, Odd Fellows nipped Gyros, 7-6.

Britannias went on the biggest scoring spree of the Fairfield Little League season yesterday, routing ANAF Vets, 27-1, at Brooke Street Park to gain a share of first place with Goodyears, beaten by Public Service, 12-7.

We want you to enjoy a "King-Size" Vacation this year!

Our State of Washington sometimes seems so big, so varied and, yes, so beautiful that some folks wonder if they can actually see and enjoy it in a limited vacation period. Well, if you are one of those persons, we have a pleasant surprise for you. We have "gridded-up" our beautiful state!

Note the miniature map above. (We have a big copy in full color and detail we'd like to send you.) But meantime, see those lines the boys are putting up? Those grid lines, both horizontal and vertical, are just 50 miles apart. Just about an average hour's drive. And we put them in just so you would understand how easy it is to get around and enjoy our fascinating "corner of the country."

For instance: the distance from our southern boundary to our northern boundary, as you can compute from the grid lines, is a matter of about six hours' driving. It's four-laned practically all the way, and Seattle is about midway; or about three hours north of Portland, Oregon, and three hours south of Vancouver, B.C. Across the state is a matter of about three hours longer, including an easy climb over the mighty Cascades. You can drive from sea level to ski level in two hours, or ferry and drive from modern civilization of metropolitan Seattle to the primeval forests of the Olympic National Forest in three hours.

In whatever direction you roam, almost every hour brings some natural, or man-made, wonder to intrigue your interest or challenge your imagination. Towering, snow-capped mountains; gigantic, awe-inspiring dams; sparkling, gem-like lakes; national and state parks in seemingly endless variety; quaint and curious natural wonders and just lots and lots of places and things we think you'll enjoy.

So even if your time is limited (or certainly if your time is your own) a few minutes with this map will quickly convince you that a wonderful vacation awaits you in Washington State. The full-size map, in full color and great detail, measures 12 x 18 inches. It is the centerpiece of a beautifully illustrated folder which we call "Only Hours Apart." The color illustrations picture many of the beauties of might and magnificence you will want to see, and the "gridded" map shows you how easy it is to see them. Let us send you a copy, won't you? It's yours for the asking. Mail the coupon today and the folder will come to you by return mail. You'll be glad you did!

The Crowning Glory of This Mighty Metropolis Is Not Its Palaces and Cathedrals But THE PARKS OF LONDON

LONDON is the largest city in the world, but scattered through it are over 100 oases of country—parks and gardens, squares and playing fields—which are as typical of London as St. Paul's Cathedral or the House of Parliament.

Every Londoner has a passionate love of green things which is reflected in tiny backyard gardens, window boxes, square gardens and riverside terraces. But the parks are quite different from all these:

The most famous of them all are Hyde Park, St. James' Park, Regent's Park, and the Royal Parks. Hyde Park is the largest, and St. James' Park is the most beautiful. Regent's Park is the most famous, and the Royal Parks are the most beautiful.

not carefully laid-out ornamental gardens, but stretches of natural grass, trees and flowers which have belonged to the Londoner from time immemorial.

Wander through them and you will see family parties playing that most English of all games—cricket; old people dozing in the sunshine, lovers walking hand-in-hand, children playing, dogs romping, as they have done for hundreds of years.

One of the thousand-and-one delights of visitors to London is the trip on Regent's Canal in such colorful power barges as this. Above tourists enjoy the magnificence of this oasis in the heart of the greatest metropolis.

In this article Author Reddin was writing for American readers as an American correspondent. And refers to the American interest in the continuing truce in Korea as though it were unilateral. When he recalls that Korean soil is soaked with American blood, he means blood of troops of the United Nations.

It was the United Nations and not the United States which fought the aggressors in Korea, although the preponderance of men and material was provided by Washington. And it is a force representative of the United Nations, and not the United States, which is safeguarding the truce in Korea. However, Author Reddin's story has a worthwhile message for all those who still have hope in the efficacy of the United Nations.

MAURICE CHEVALIER LIVES UP TO HIS REPUTATION

Connoisseur of Women

PARIS, FRANCE—When I heard the inimitable Maurice Chevalier was in Paris, I hoped I would be able to meet him and to chat about women with this bon vivant who so frankly lived for love. Mutual friends arranged it and we met at a side-walk cafe on the Champs Elysees.

He is a tall, slender man with a white shirt and a dark bow tie. He is smiling and looking at me. He is a connoisseur of women.

It Looked Like Sorcery - - - For He Stanchd the Blood Flow - With a Wave of His Hand

AFTER A SEARING FROST in late March 1906, the spring came in unusually early. The first days of May saw the deciduous trees in full leaf. In places the woodland was all aflame and scented with the flowering currant.

To save a long journey by road, we walked through an old trail to this land, Roberta and I taking turns carrying baby Florence.

How we made temporary abode in an abandoned shack how we set about building a house and clearing this land of massive trees and brush, meanwhile working on occasional jobs, how in doing this I ravaged and burned enough magnificent trees—as others had done and still are doing—whose value in modern terms would have amounted to a goodly fortune; how the strenuous but glorious years passed; the hardships, the heart-breaks and the successes; all this, I say, should form no part of this true tale.

For a Little While, After They Cross the High Pass Tibetans Taste Rare Air of Freedom

GANGTOK, Sikkim—The Tibetan caravaneers start singing as soon as they cross the Nathu La, the covered peaks still glisten around them but the long climb across the pass is over. A day's walk down the winding track ahead and they are out of Communist-occupied Tibet.

The caravaneers are a mix of Tibetans, Nepalese, and Indian servants. They are carrying goods and people across the high pass. The pass is a narrow, winding track that leads down to the town of Gangtok.

Gangtok is a bustling town built on a hillside. It is the capital of Sikkim. The town is surrounded by lush green hills and forests. The caravaneers are walking through the town towards the airport.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

For the first time, a privately-owned TV station in the United States is getting together with the schools in its city to show educational television.

WVEC-TV, Norfolk, Va., will telecast courses on at least four subjects from 8 to 10 a.m. on school days for elementary schools, and from 2 p.m. for secondary schools, throughout the 1957-58 school year.

The cost will be $112,000, shared equally by the city of Norfolk and the Ford Foundation's fund for the advancement of education. The big thing about it is that it will be an experiment — if it succeeds, Ford Foundation will introduce similar school TV in seven large midwestern cities.

Rita Del Mar's Daily Astrology
SUNDAY, JULY 21, 1957
Today's quotation: "Music revives the recollections it would appear." - Madame de Staël
Sunday for everyone. The day tends somewhat to confusion, forgetfulness, snap judgment. Others can offer you counsel that will enable you to see things more clearly if you multi-task more carefully.
Look for your birthdate and birthday below.
March 21 to April 19 (Aries) - Give necessary thought, attention to finances, belongings. Don't be impractical or involved.
April 20 to May 20 (Taurus) - Reckless plans, decisions; no finalities today.
May 21 to June 20 (Gemini) - Solve problems, catch up with sleep, rest; safeguard assets; don't forget money.
June 21 to July 20 (Cancer) - Friends can be helpful offer good suggestions. However, distrust haste or hunches.
July 21 to Aug. 20 (Leo) - Finish odds and ends of tasks, catch up on rest. Be useful with others. Superior.
Aug. 21 to Sept. 20 (Virgo) - Forward religious, philosophical, distant interests; curbing spending.
Sept. 21 to Oct. 20 (Libra) - Attend to accounts, savings, secrets, protect reputations, standing.
Oct. 21 to Nov. 20 (Scorpio) - Get out a while, observe the talents, ideas of others; avoid confusion, changes.
Nov. 21 to Dec. 20 (Sagittarius) - Attend to wardrobe; give, gain service. Shun impracticality, recklessness.
Dec. 21 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn) - Relax, enjoy your self, but steer clear of risks, extravagance, misadventures.
Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius) - Take things easy; be around home, base; watch diet, health, family matters.

Well known in automotive sales circles in this city, Frank MacDonald has recently joined the sales staff of Plumley on Yates. Mr. MacDonald has nine years of automotive experience in Victoria and was previously engaged in auto sales in Scotland. He specializes in Rambler and English automobiles and will be pleased to meet old friends and new customers as he takes up his duties in new and used car sales at Plumley (Home phone, 2-3474.)

On Mount Tolmie

Work is expected to start soon on developing parking facilities and road approaches at Mount Tolmie, but a lookout ramp there has been deferred.

Capital District Improvement Commission approved "the basics" for the present and will consider the ramp later, commission chairman R. A. Pennington said yesterday.

Garden Notes

Wild Rose or Sucker?

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS
ROSE OR SUCKER?—W. B. F.

Vancouver: With the modern roses, it is impossible to tell a wild rose sucker from the true rose by the number of leaflets. These roses have shoots may have five, seven, or any other number of leaflets.

The only way to tell is to see where the suspect shoot is coming from. If it arises from beneath the soil and below the graft, that swollen knob on the main stem of the rose, just below the surface, it is a wild sucker and must be removed. Dig down and cut it off cleanly at its point of origin.

MAGGOTTY PEAS.—(R. R. Victoria.) This gardener has been growing peas for 20 years and has never found a grub in one. He tells me his method is to soak the seeds in a solution of white sulphur and water before planting, then spray with the same solution with a little detergent added to make it stick. The first spray goes on when the plants are four inches tall, and every 10 days thereafter until the bloom is well advanced.

This treatment should be particularly valuable for late-sown peas, for in addition to protecting the crop from the root moth, the sulphur spray would most certainly control mildew, which is always a problem in the late summer.

HORSETAIL WEED.—(M. M. K. Victoria.) While horsetail can be killed on vacant ground by several sprays of Brushkill or Brushbane, it is a very persistent weed, and there is no easy method of eradicating it in your perennial border.

All you can do is to keep everlastingly after it with the Dutch hoe. If it is never allowed to make any topgrowth, the roots must die eventually for lack of carbon.

BOOKS ON GARDENING.—(E. E. L. Victoria.) Welcome to Victoria, and I am sure you will find gardening here vastly different from Regina.

You will miss the incredibly fertile soil of Saskatchewan and the speed of growth in midsummer, but you will find a vast range of plants which can be grown here and nowhere else in Canada.

The clearest all-round book on gardening in my mind is "The Complete Book of Garden Magic" by Roy E. Biles. Another good one, written specifically for the Pacific Coast, is the Sunset Flower Garden Book, an excellent and well-organized book of reference is Taylor's Encyclopedia of Gardening, third edition, which sells for around $6.

I suggest that you make a collection of seed and nursery catalogues, taking the addresses from the advertisements in the various garden magazines and from the listings in the yellow section of the telephone directory. A particularly instructive catalogue is Wayside Gardens, Mentor, Ohio, which will cost you $60 but is well worth it for the illustrations alone.

Names in the News

Romantic Tale Dashed

LONDON—London newspapers dashed cold water on rumors circulated abroad that Princess Margaret might marry Lord Patrick Beaufort, Beresford, from Dublin, said: "There is absolutely no truth in the rumor. I am going to London for the announcement of my engagement to Princess Margaret."

DENVER—Colorado nudists have boycotted the Midwest Sunbathing Club because a Denver member, Evelyn West, had been booted out for being a stripper. John Garrison, president of the Colorado Club said: "They think a girl who takes off her clothes for a living shouldn't be a nudist."

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT.—Mrs. Rosita Tanner, 44-year-old grandmother from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was unsuccessful yesterday in her attempt to swim across Lake Ontario. She was taken from the water after swimming 20 miles in more than 18 hours.

ATLANTA, Ga.—A Georgia Tech professor died yesterday from wounds received in an attack upon him by two youths. Dr. William Knox Pursley, 32, was associate professor of physics.

TUNIS, Tunisia—The Bey of Tunis' younger son, Prince Salah Eddine, was held in jail yesterday charged with trying to run down a palace guard with his automobile. It is unprecedented for a member of the royal family to be jailed. Motive was to lower the bey's prestige with the people of Tunis.

WESTON, SUPER-MARE, England—Channel swimmer Florence Chadwick said yesterday she intends to swim the Bristol Channel in Wales Monday or Tuesday "come hell or high water."

KINGSTON, Ont.—Earl Maitland, 20, who escaped Friday from a penitentiary, was captured Saturday night without a struggle. Two other men who escaped Saturday night were captured still at large.

LONDON—John Wilson Vickers, 21, convicted of killing an aged spinster while robbing her store, will become the first killer to die on the scaffold in Britain in nearly two years, next Tuesday. The Home Office announced that Home Secretary Butler had decided against a reprieve for Vickers.

FRANKFURT, Germany—Acid-blinded U.S. labor columnist Victor Riesel said yesterday a German eye specialist agrees with his American doctors that some of his sight may be restored.

TAIPEI, Formosa.—Police are looking for Chang Tze-jan, 25, sentenced to jail for two months for counterfeiting. Chang induced another man to assume his identity and serve the sentence, offering him $150. He refused to pay when the man got out of jail and the man informed police.

BERLIN—A group of German military officers yesterday celebrated the 13th anniversary of their attempt to assassinate Adolf Hitler. Some 300 former officers and widows of officers executed by Hitler after the 1941 plot gathered in the back yard of the army headquarters where Col. Count von Stauffenberg, the man who placed a bomb under Hitler's desk, died before a firing squad.

Car Corner

Guide to Station Wagons

By J. T. JONES

In response to many inquiries all from the same man—we're doing a brief review today of the imported station wagon situation.

There are quite a surprising number of these so many, in fact, that we'll have to eliminate right away the very small ones, Morris Minor, Ford Squire, Hillman Husky and Standard Companion.

While all these are sturdy and useful vehicles, they are limited in seating accommodation and luggage space and definitely don't fit into the general uses of station wagons as we know them.

What we will examine in brief are the larger vehicles: Ford's Consul, Zephyr, and Zodiac; Austin's A-85 Countryman, Morris Oxford and Isis, Volkswagen's Midget Bus and Standard's Estate Car.

Here are the main specifications. Prices given are as quoted by Victoria dealers and are not strictly comparable since some include as standard equipment what may be extras on others. Moreover, there is always that element of wheeling and dealing that makes the automobile business an interesting.

Consul: Four-cylinder, 104-cubic-inch engine, 59 horsepower; seats six; four doors; load space with all seats in place, 36 cubic feet; rear door side hinged; overall length, 172 inches. Very American in appearance. Roof rack. Quoted price, $2,790.

Zephyr and Zodiac: Body very similar to Consul's; six cylinders and 86 horsepower; overall length 178 inches; load space same as Consul; trim is much fancier, especially on Zodiac.

Quoted price on Zephyr, $2,950. Austin A-85 Countryman: Six-cylinder, 161-cubic-inch, 92-horsepower engine; seats for six; four doors; load space with seats in place, 28 cubic feet; roof rack; rear doors hinged top and bottom; overall length, 181 inches; quoted price, $3,085.

Morris Oxford: Four-cylinder, 91-cubic-inch, 55-horsepower engine; seats for six; two doors; load space with all seats in place, 23 cubic feet; double doors at rear, side hinged; overall length, 159 inches. Quoted price, $2,245.

Morris Isis: Six-cylinder, 161-cubic-inch, 90-horsepower engine; seats for six or eight; two doors; load space with seats in place, 23 cubic feet; rear doors same as Oxford; overall length, 177 inches. Quoted price, $2,585.

Volkswagen Midget Bus: Four-cylinder, 73-cubic-inch, 36-horsepower engine; seats for eight; front door each side, plus wide double doors to passenger area and door at rear to luggage space; load space with all seats in place, 28 cubic feet (seats handle in remove than most); overall length, 165 inches; height, 76½ inches; appearance is tidy, buslike, and totally different from other station wagons; ground clearance, exceptional. Quoted price, $2,635. The luxe model with sun roof and top windows, $2,805.

Standard Estate Car: Four-cylinder, 127-cubic-inch, 65-horsepower engine; seats for six; load space with all seats in place, estimated, 18 cubic feet; four side doors and double rear doors, side hinged; overall length, 172 inches. Quoted price, $2,695.

All these notes are necessarily sketchy, but they should serve as a guide to general size, power and cost, and give some clue as to where to start looking for the most suitable vehicle for any particular set of needs.

Winning Contract

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

trucks. With the diamond opening, however, South ruffed, cashed the heart ace and trumped his last heart in dummy. This enabled dummy to lead a club and, when East ducked, declarer won the trick with the king.

After that it was a simple matter in knock out the ace of spades, draw the rest of the adverse trumps, concede single club trick when the queen and are obligingly clattered on the second club lead, and spread his hand to claim the balance.

Although South's tactics were successful, they were hardly calculated to achieve the best results most of the time. What purpose could it serve to stay out of the bidding if, when the opponents reached four hearts, South was going in bid four spades anyway?

It is much better to pre-empt with four spades at once—putting the pressure on the opponents and possibly putting partner in the driver's seat if the pre-emptive bid lured West into an unkind attempt to compete.

If you were sitting in the kitchen's chair here yesterday, you will understand why West has decided that it doesn't pay to open diamonds. Yesterday, a diamond opening cost him one trick—but it was a doubled overtrick worth 200 points. Today the diamond lead was two tricks less effective than an opening lead of a trump.

Having bid the hand to the maximum that his club could make, you can scarcely blame East for deciding to take the "sure" profit. South had bid up to five spades all by himself. He figured to have a good hand, but he also figured to pick up a bad dummy. Bad though it was, it was worth several tricks.

Against a trump lead, declarer would have been compelled to lose one heart, one spade and two club

WINNING POINTS

You can't fool good players by waiting until the auction gets very high before coming in. Unless you have a well-earned reputation as a wild man, they'll know you have a powerful trick hand. Usually, therefore, it is best to make the big bid immediately and enjoy its possible pre-emptive value.

Stop that Roof Leak!

By J. RALPH DALZIELL

The first warning of a leak in the roof usually comes in the form of a damp spot in the ceiling plaster under an attic space.

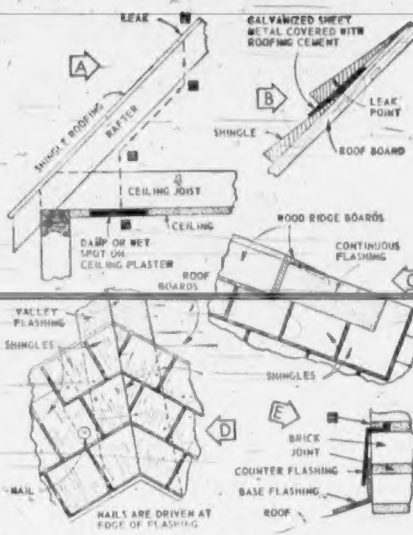

If repairs are neglected the results may include loose plaster, rotted structural details or even more serious damage which would require costly repairs.

But small leaks can be repaired before serious damage is done. The procedure is not difficult and very little expense is involved. For example, consider a leak at point 2. The water might run down the bottom edge of a rafter, as from point 3 to 4, before dripping to the ceiling at 5. The rafter may show discoloration that would indicate the path of the water.

Picture A shows part of a roof and a typical ceiling below it. Picture B shows a simple way to repair a leak. Coat a piece of galvanized sheet iron with roofing cement and shove it under the shingle. In most cases this will stop the leak.

In many old houses, two boards compose the ridge of the roof somewhat as shown in picture C. If leaking occurs along the ridge, remove the boards and place sheet metal flashing as shown. Then replace the boards but be careful not to nail through the flashing.

Sometimes leaks occur along the valley where two sloping parts of a roof intersect. Remove a few shingles along the valley and then install metal flashing over the roof boards as shown in picture D.

If leaks occur where roofing meets the chimney, new counter and base flashing sheet metal can be installed as shown in picture E. Note that the top of the counter flashing must be inserted in a mortar joint at point 6 and the mortar replaced.

Pulley Find Solves Riddle of Pyramids

CAIRO (NANAV)—An Egyptian archaeologist has unearthed two perfectly preserved pulleys which solve an ancient riddle of how the pyramids were built.

Dr. Salim Hassan, chief adviser on antiquities to the Egyptian government, dropped a bombshell in a quiet lecture meeting of 40 scholars, teachers and ministers were used 3,500 years ago to raise two-ton limestone blocks to the top of the 400-foot Khufu Pyramid.

Until now Egyptologists have believed that the pyramid builders did not have the pulley, although they are known to have made wide use of ropes. Scholars have believed that the Egyptian builders, not inventors themselves, but skilled at using
